GRAVESIDE Breakfast

Richmond, Virginia – United States

Can equal parts grunge, classic hard rock, and goth all coexist in one body? Dressed like some jumble of Anton LeVay and P.T. Barnum, singer/guitarist dolst of Graveside Breakfast says, "Yeah!" They call it "grimdark".

Genre: grimdark, Goth Rock, Hard Rock, Dark Punk, Horror Rock

Members: dolst-Guitar/Vocals, dExtrosien-Bass, The Tendril-Drums, Rattler-Promotions

Graveside Breakfast's songs weave tales of vampire love gone bad, ruthless ancient machine people, and cities on fire. They expel these stories with crooning, howling, screaming, growling, and the odd death metal grunt tossed in for good measure. All this is layered atop rock-solid riffs and ethereal chords alike, interspersed with simple yet heartfelt guitar solos. Even on the occasional slowdowns, haunting melodies act as spider silk, woven to buoy the weight of such topics as betrayal and suicide.

Since their inception, Graveside Breakfast has played With bands such as Eien Strife, Carousel Kings, Awake at Last, and Blackwater Reserve to name a Few. Raïen of Eien Strife has said "This grimdark thing is awesome!" While Vincent Torres of Awake At Last was quoted as saying, "Graveside Breakfast is my spirit animal!"

Bringing that grimdark to RVA is what they are about right now. Says dolst, "We want to tell our story and belt out the songs that touch those black and unpleasant places. This is not to glorify evil, but to draw a bold line between 'dark' and 'evil', and show they are not the same thing. You can be the one wearing all black and still stand up for what is right." The cacophony of grimdark is bellowing its siren song, and the masses had best listen!
